Method and sources

In short

1. The revision left 1.08 crore names off Karnataka's draft roll, the list published on 24 August 2026 for electors to check and contest. That is 19.5 of every 100 electors on the roll of 16 June, before the revision began.
2. Bengaluru's four districts lost 45.1 of every 100 electors. They hold 18.7% of the state's roll and 43.4% of the names left off the draft.
3. 60.6% were entered as shifted, 14.1% as absent, 15.2% as dead and 6.6% as already enrolled elsewhere. A reason on the list is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.
4. By 9 October the roll had risen by 5,25,418 since the draft, 4.9% of the names left off. In Bengaluru it rose by 49,951. The rise counts new voters as well as names put back.

The Chief Electoral Officer, who keeps the state's rolls for the Election Commission, published the revision by its 34 election districts only. So no figure here is by assembly constituency, and the names left off cannot be set against the winning margins of the 2023 election. The names left off are not split by sex. The final roll is due on 27 October 2026.

The revision was published by district only. The four Bengaluru districts stand apart from everywhere else, and outside them the rate runs from 6.0 per 100 in Udupi to 22.0 in Gulbarga.

The roll, step by step

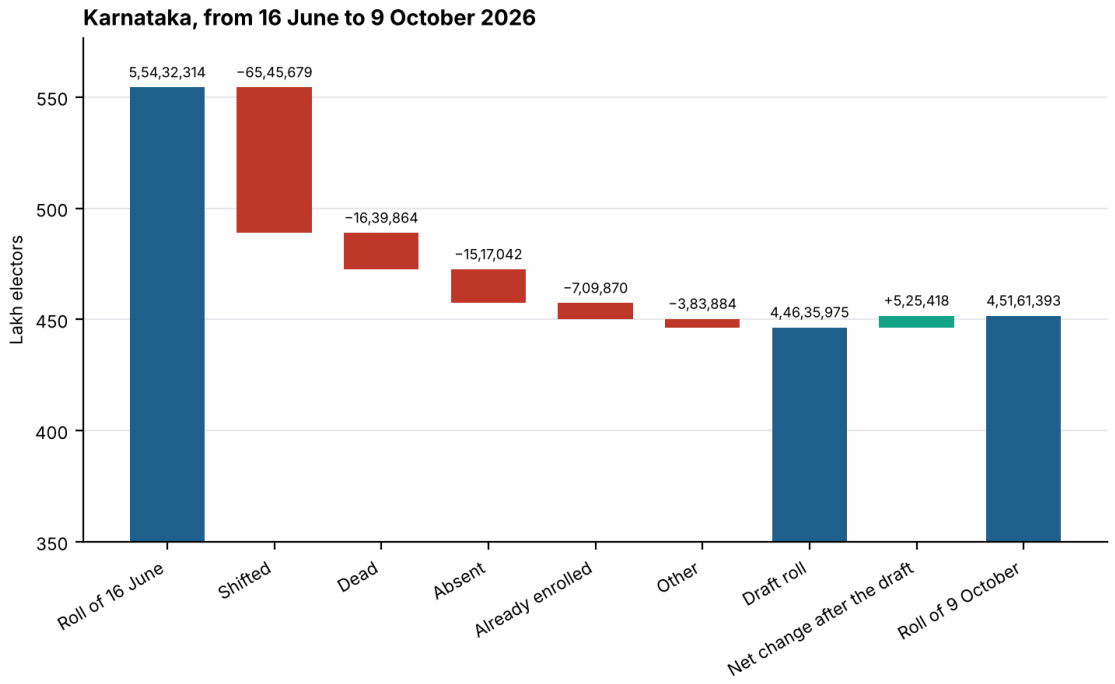

Figure 2. The bars start above zero so that the changes can be seen. The figure on each bar is the count. The final roll is due on 27 October 2026.

The roll of 16 June 2026 held 5.54 crore names. 1,07,96,339 were left off the draft roll of 24 August, which held 4.46 crore. Electors could then file claims, on Form 6, to add a name, and objections, on Form 7, to delete one. By 9 October those had closed, notices were still being heard, and the roll stood at 4.52 crore.

Per 100 electors, by district

Bengaluru's four districts lost between 42.7 and 49.3 of every 100 electors, against 19.5 for the state. The next highest is Gulbarga at 22.0. Udupi lost the fewest, 6.0.

Across the state, 60.6% of the names were entered as shifted and 14.1% as absent, 15.2% as dead and 6.6% as already enrolled elsewhere. The more names a district lost, the larger the share marked shifted or absent. Their rank correlation, a measure that runs from -1 to 1 and comes near 1 when two things rise in step, is 0.81. Where fewer were left off, more were entered as dead, up to 41.2% in Uttara Kannada. A reason on the list is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

Bengaluru

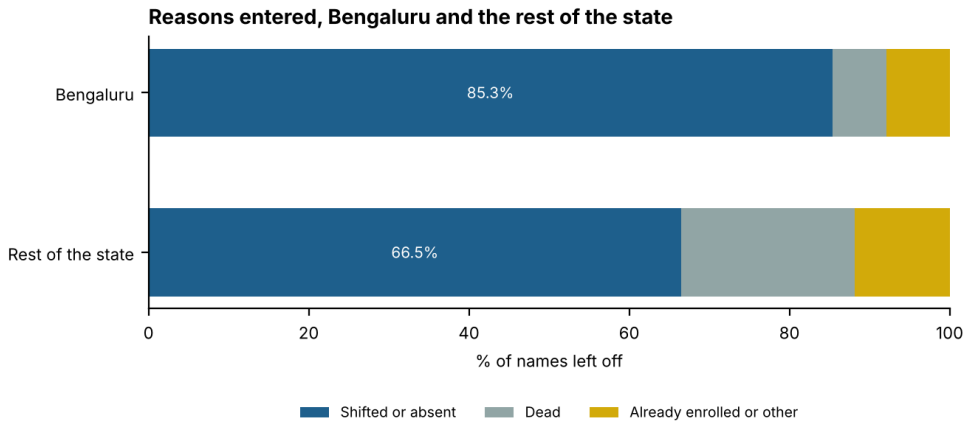

Figure 5. Bangalore Urban and the North, Central and South districts of the city corporation, B.B.M.P., against the other thirty districts.

Bengaluru holds 18.7% of Karnataka's roll and 43.4% of the names left off the draft, 46.9 lakh names in all. 85.3% of them were entered as shifted or absent and 6.8% as dead. In the rest of the state the figures are 66.5% and 21.6%. Bangalore Rural is outside these four.

Women

The roll of 16 June is published as a total only and the names left off are not split by sex, so women's share of the names left off cannot be counted from the Chief Electoral Officer's tables. Women were 50.3% of the draft roll and 50.4% of the roll of 9 October. The roll before the revision gives no count by sex, so these two figures cannot show whether women were left off more often than men.

After the draft

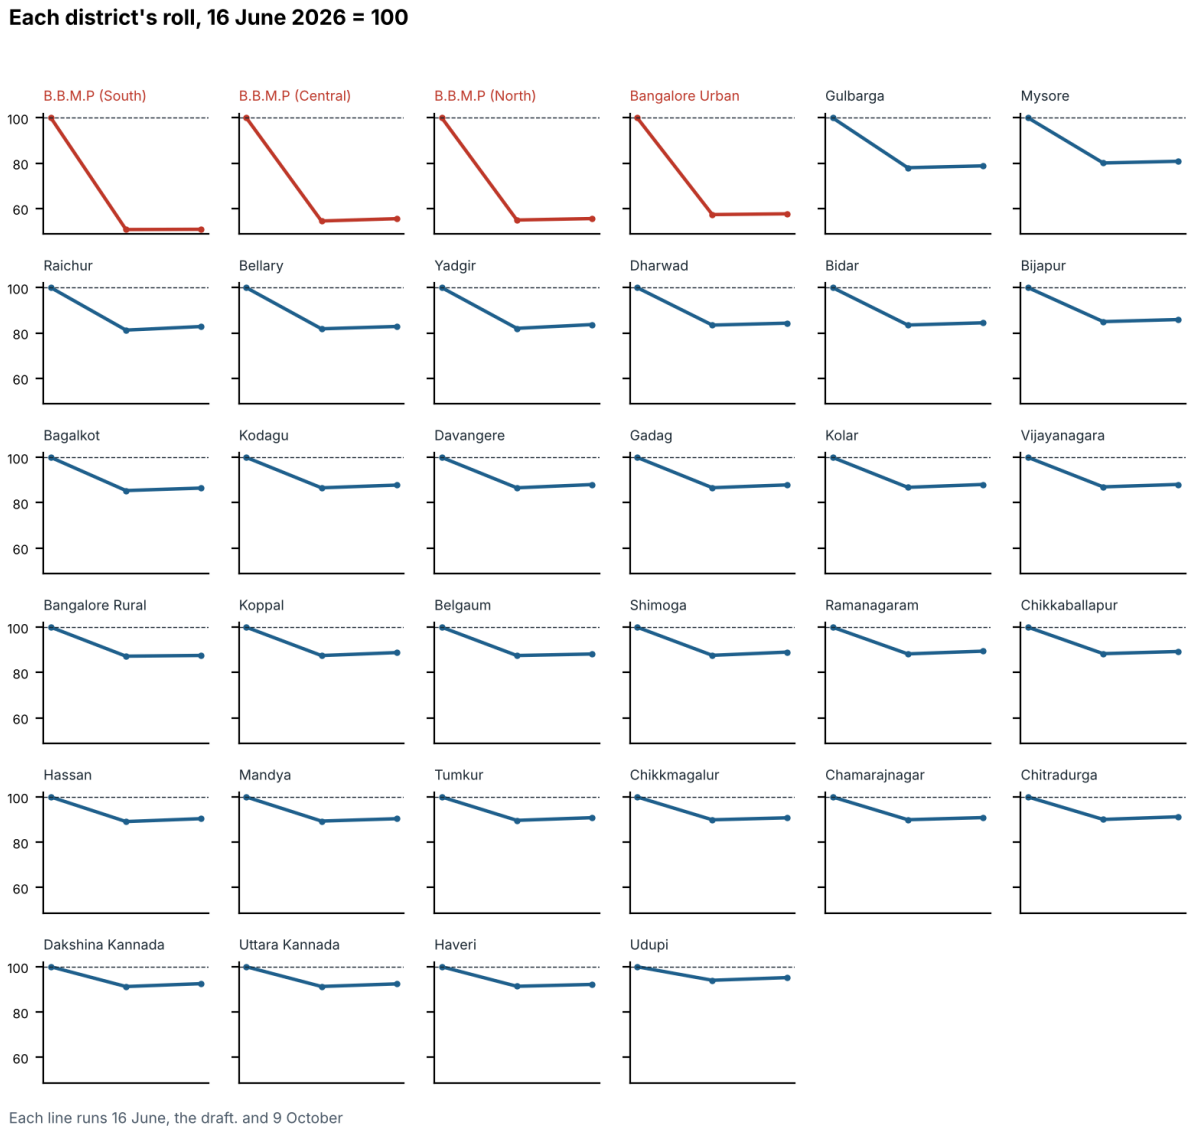

Figure 6. Each small chart follows one district's roll from 16 June to the draft and to 9 October, with 16 June set at 100. The dashed line is the June level. Bengaluru's four districts in red.

By 9 October the roll had risen by 5,25,418 since the draft, 4.9% of the 1.08 crore names left off. In Bengaluru it rose by 49,951, against 46.9 lakh names left off. Elsewhere the rise came to 7.8% of the names left off. The final roll may change this, and the rise includes new voters, so it is the most that could have been restored.

What these tables show and what they cannot

The tables show how many names were left off the draft in each of the 34 election districts, on what recorded reason, and how the roll stood on 9 October.

- Which constituencies lost the most names, or how the names left off compare with the margins of the 2023 election. Nothing has been published by assembly constituency.
- Whether women, the old or the young were left off more often.
- Whether each name was rightly left off. A reason on the list is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

What the Election Commission should do

1.08 crore names were left off Karnataka's draft roll, 46.9 lakh of them in Bengaluru. The Election Commission should do five things before the final roll.

1. Publish the names left off by assembly constituency and polling station, with the reason, so that they can be set against the places they came from.
2. Publish the names left off by sex and age, with the roll of 16 June by sex.

3. Publish the basis for the 80.6 lakh entries marked shifted or absent, including the visits made and the notice given.
4. Explain why Bengaluru lost 45.1 of every 100 electors, against 13.6 in the rest of the state.
5. Publish with the final roll how many of those added had been left off the draft, so that names restored can be told apart from new voters.

Method and sources

The Chief Electoral Officer, Karnataka, published the draft roll on 24 August 2026 with a table of the names left off it, by election district and under five reasons, absent, permanently shifted, dead, already enrolled and other. The 34 district rows add up to the state row, 1,07,96,339 names out of 5,54,32,314, and in every district the names left off and the forms digitised add up to the roll of 16 June 2026.

The Chief Electoral Officer published every table of the revision by its 34 election districts and for the state, and none by assembly constituency. Bengaluru appears as four of those districts, Bangalore Urban and the North, Central and South districts of the city corporation, B.B.M.P.

The final roll is due on 27 October 2026. Until then the latest figures are the roll of 9 October 2026, by district and sex. The rise from the draft to that roll is the names added less those deleted since, so it counts new voters as well as names put back.

The map joins the constituency boundaries of DataMeet's assembly constituency map, licensed CC BY 2.5 India, by the district each constituency belongs to in the Election Commission's own list. Only counts are published, never a name, EPIC number or address.
