MAHARASHTRA 2026

Figures as of 31 August 2026, when the draft roll was published. The final roll is due on 16 November 2026.

Overview

1. Maharashtra's draft roll of 31 August 2026 left off 2.07 crore names, 21.1 of every 100 electors on the roll before the revision.

2. Bhiwandi East lost 49.1 of every 100 names, the most of the 288 constituencies, and in 220 of them more names were left off than the 2024 winning margin.

3. Thane left off 38.4 of every 100 electors, the most of the 36 districts, and Mumbai City, Mumbai Suburban, Pune and Nagpur come next. Hingoli left off the fewest, 8.8.

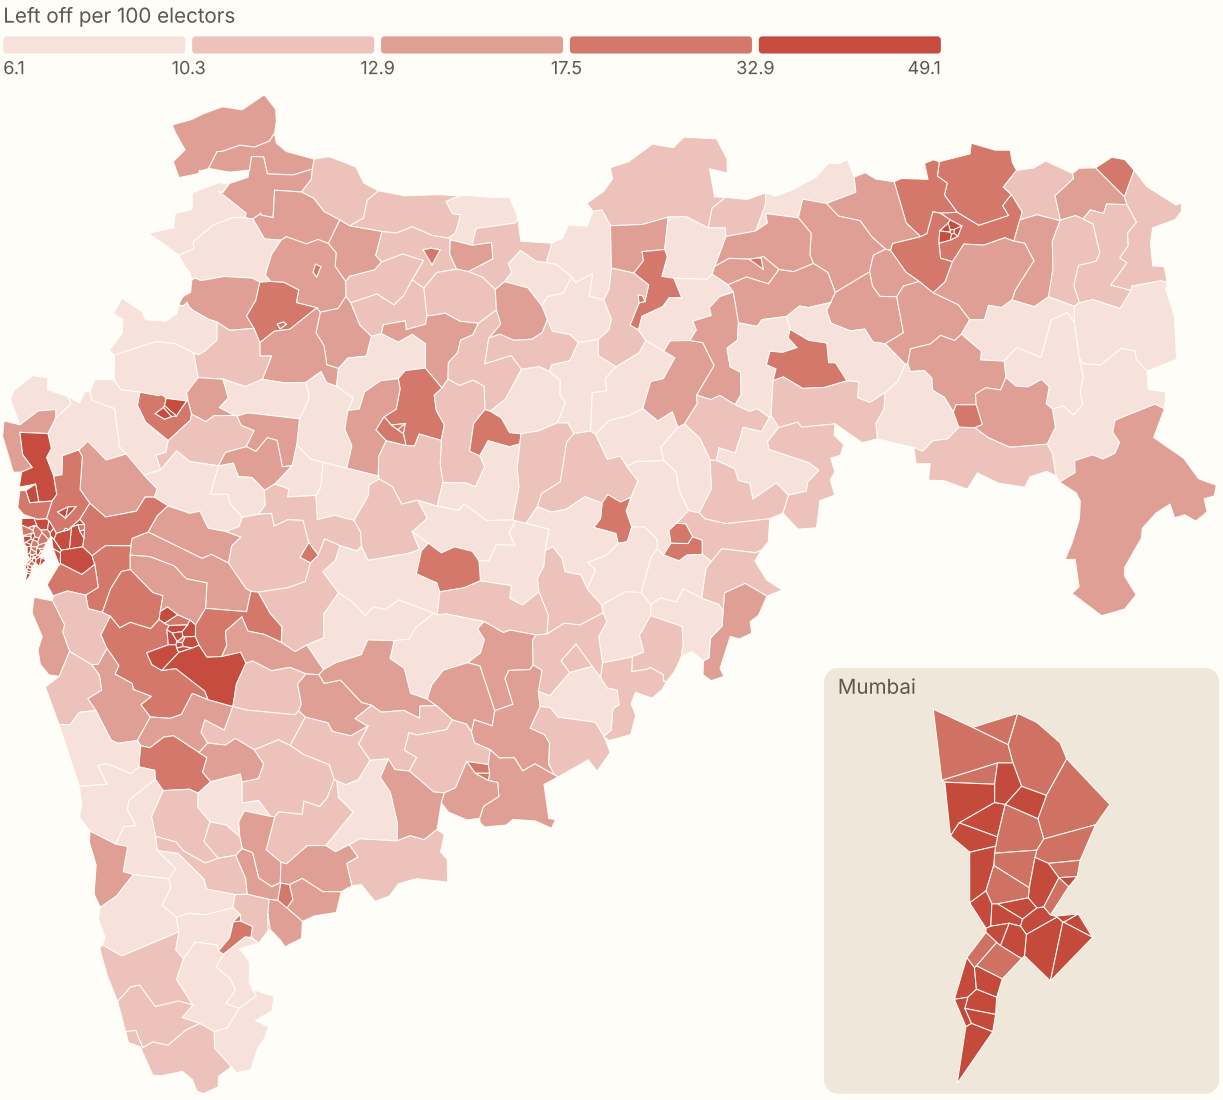

4. The five districts of Mumbai City, Mumbai Suburban, Thane, Palghar and Pune hold 29.9% of the state's roll and 48.4% of the names left off. They lost 34.2 of every 100 electors, against 15.6 in the other 31 districts.

5. 37.1% of the names left off were entered as shifted for good, 36.5% as untraceable or absent, 16.8% as dead, 8.5% as enrolled at another place and 1.1% under another reason, by the Chief Electoral Officer's own tables.

6. Claims and objections run to 26 October 2026, and the final roll is due on 16 November 2026. Until it is out, nobody can say how many of the names left off will be put back.

Find a constituency or district

An assembly constituency is the area that elects one member of the state assembly. Maharashtra has 288 of them in 36 districts. Type a constituency's name or number, or a district, and its figures appear below with a link you can send.

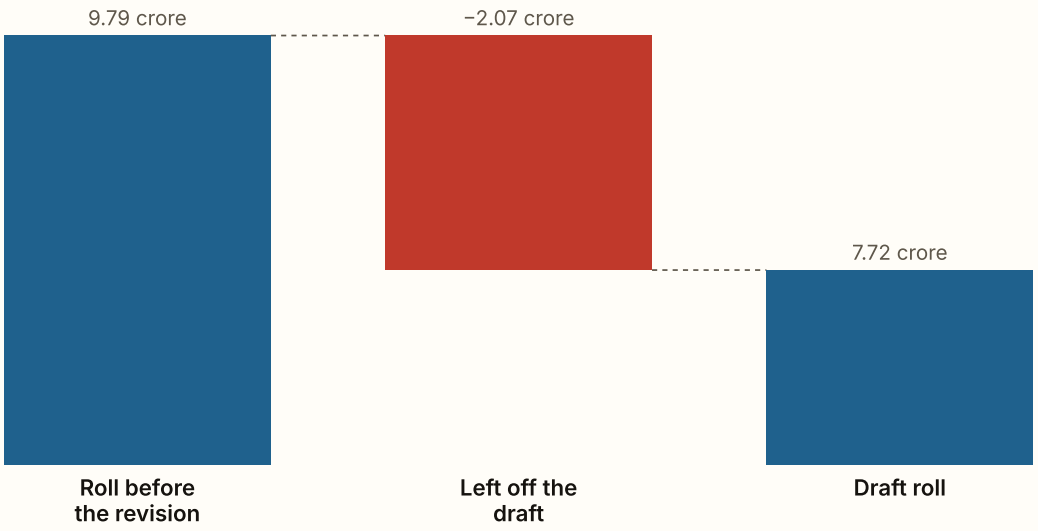

Each constituency is shaded by the names left off its draft roll for every 100 electors on its roll before the revision. The darkest lost the most. Tap a constituency for its figures. Boundaries drawn from DataMeet's assembly constituency map (CC BY 2.5 India).

The roll, step by step

Before the draft, every elector on the roll was given an enumeration form, a short form to fill in and hand back to the official for the polling station. The draft roll is the list published once the forms were collected, and a name whose form did not come back was left off it. Maharashtra's draft came out on 31 August 2026. Electors can now ask to be added or object to names on it, and only after that comes the final roll. The bars start above zero so that the changes can be seen.

> The draft roll left off 2.07 crore names, 21.1 of every 100 electors. The roll before the revision held 9.79 crore names and the draft holds 7.72 crore. One crore is ten million.

Maharashtra's dates, as they were set and as they were moved, are drawn beside every other state's on How the revision was run.

Per 100 electors, by district

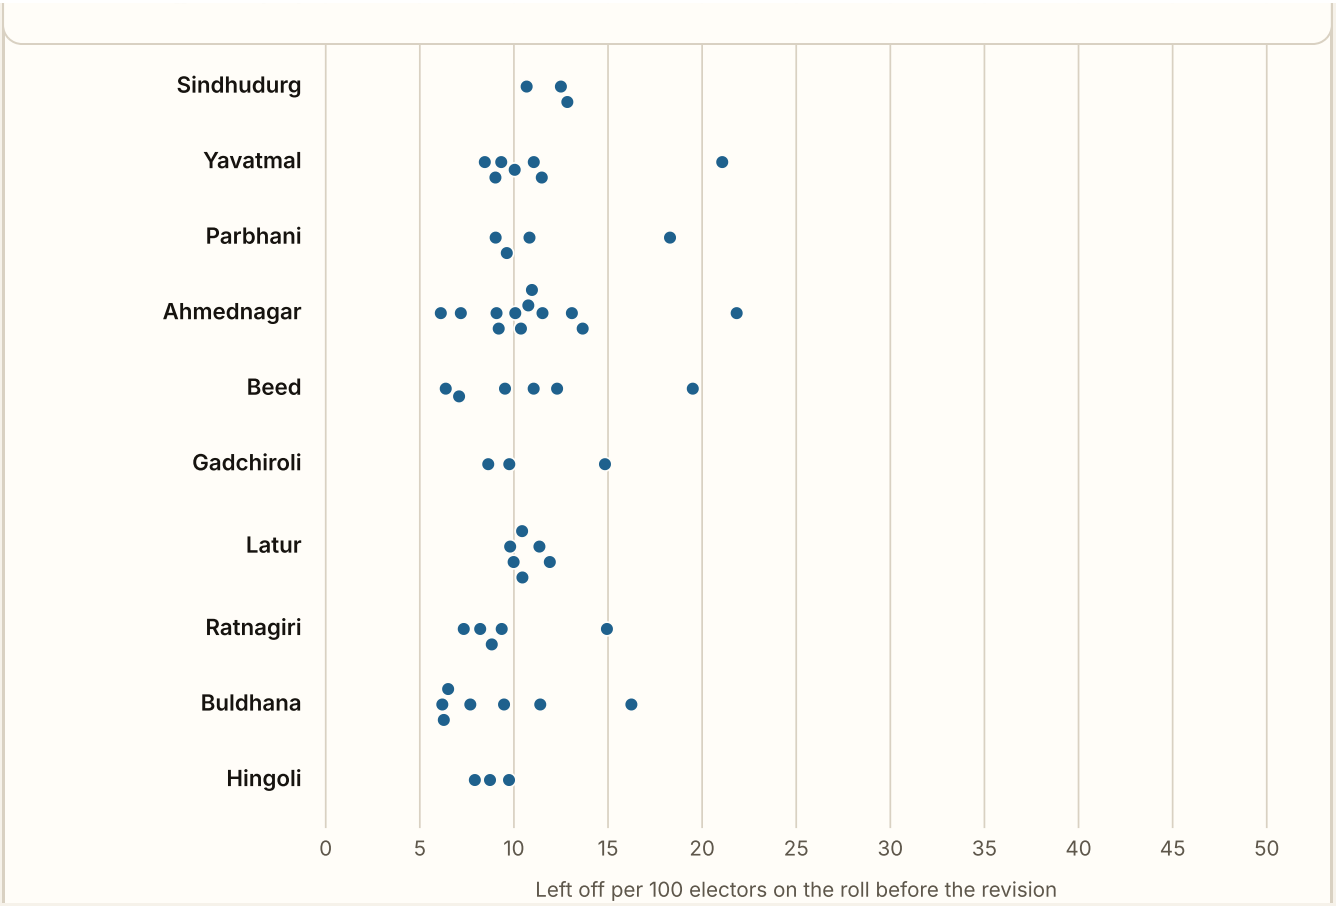

The names left off each district's draft roll, for every 100 electors on its roll before the revision. Counting per 100 electors puts large and small districts on one scale, so a rate of 20 means one elector in five was left off. The figures are from the Chief Electoral Officer (CEO), who keeps the state's rolls for the Election Commission. Mumbai City, Mumbai Suburban, Thane, Palghar and Pune are in red, and the upright line marks the rate for the state as a whole.

Thane left off 38.4 of every 100 electors, the highest rate of any district, 28.6 lakh names in all. Mumbai City, Mumbai Suburban, Pune and Nagpur come next. Outside the five city districts the highest is Nagpur, at 31.1. 7 of the 36 districts left off more than the state's 21.1, and 22 left off fewer than 15. Hingoli left off the fewest, 8.8.

> Bhiwandi East in Thane lost 49.1 of every 100 names, the most of the 288 constituencies, and Akole (ST) the fewest, 6.1. 74 constituencies lost 30 or more of every 100 and 54 fewer than 10. After Bhiwandi East come Colaba (46.9), Khadakwasala (46.5), Nalasopara (46.3) and Kothrud (46.2).

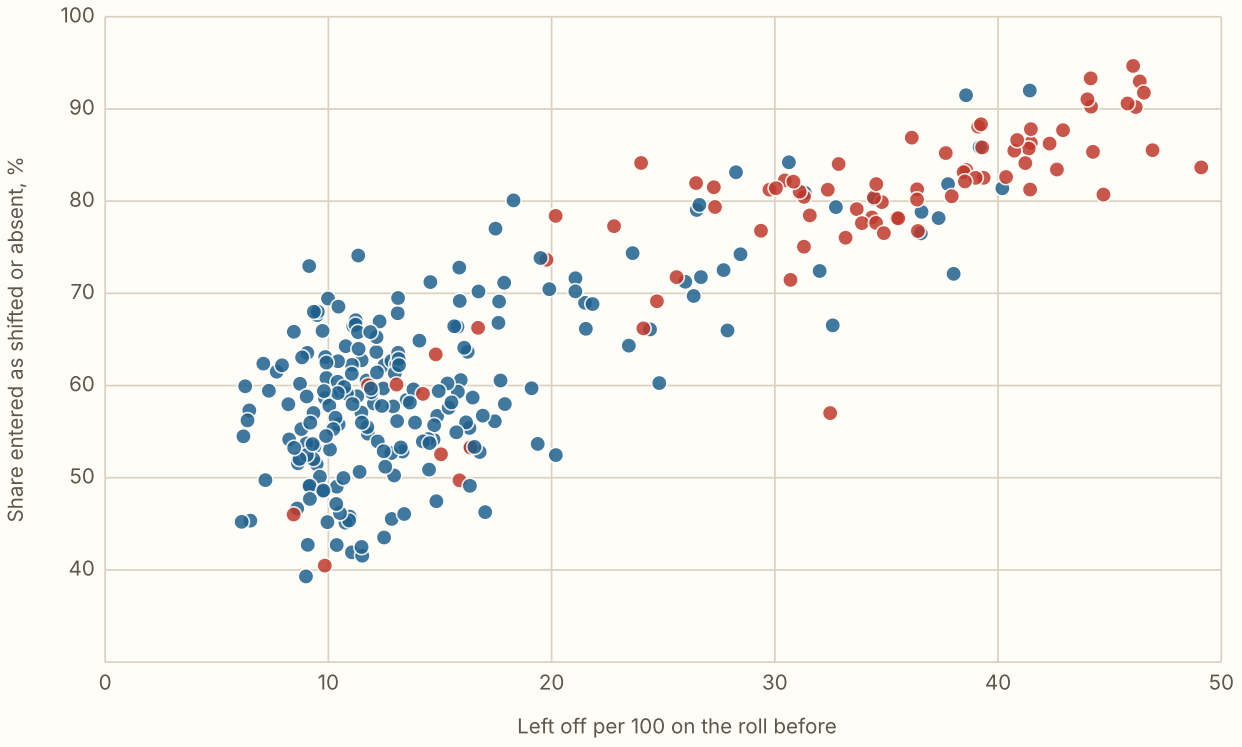

The reasons

Every name left off carries one of five reasons in the CEO's tables of 1 September 2026. The elector had shifted for good, could not be traced or was absent, had died, was already enrolled at another place, or the form was not collected for some other reason. The tables give the five for every constituency and district, and they add up to the names left off exactly. A reason is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

37.1% of the names left off were entered as shifted for good and 36.5% as untraceable or absent, 73.6% together. 16.8% were entered as dead, 8.5% as enrolled at another place and 1.1% under another reason. The five add up to the 2.07 crore left off exactly. A reason is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

Each dot is one constituency. Its place across is the names left off per 100 on its roll, and its height is the share of them entered as shifted or absent. Hover or tap a dot for its name.

Where more names were left off, more of them were entered as shifted or absent. In the 74 constituencies that lost 30 or more of every 100, 83.9% of the names left off were shifted or absent and 9.9% dead. In the 54 that lost fewer than 10, it was 55.6% and 29.4%. Red dots are constituencies in the five city districts. The entries cannot tell an elector who moved from one who was out when the officer called.

Mumbai and Pune

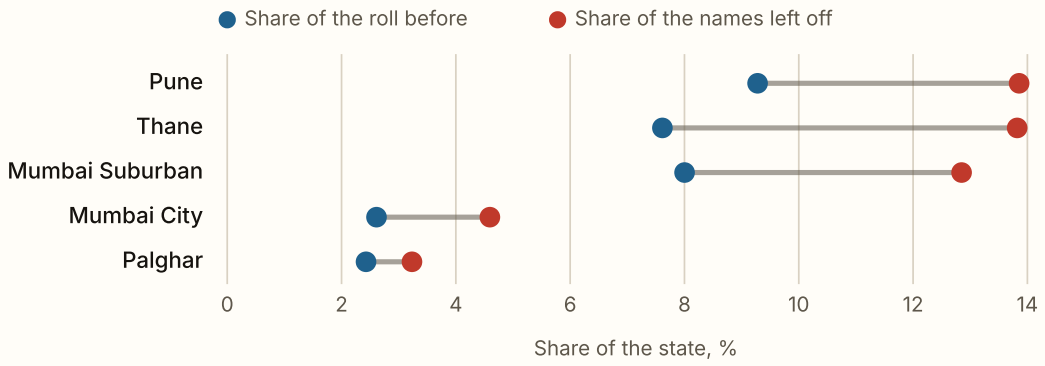

Mumbai City, Mumbai Suburban, Thane, Palghar and Pune are the five districts that hold the cities of Mumbai and Pune and the towns that have grown round them. Here they are set against the other 31 districts.

Each of the five districts' share of the state's roll before the revision, and its share of the names left off. Where the second dot sits to the right of the first, the district lost more than its share.

The five districts hold 29.9% of Maharashtra's roll and 48.4% of the names left off, 1.00 crore names in all. They lost 34.2 of every 100 electors, against 15.6 in the other 31 districts. Each of the five lost a larger share of the names than its share of the roll. Pune and Thane together account for 27.7% of every name left off in the state.

Women

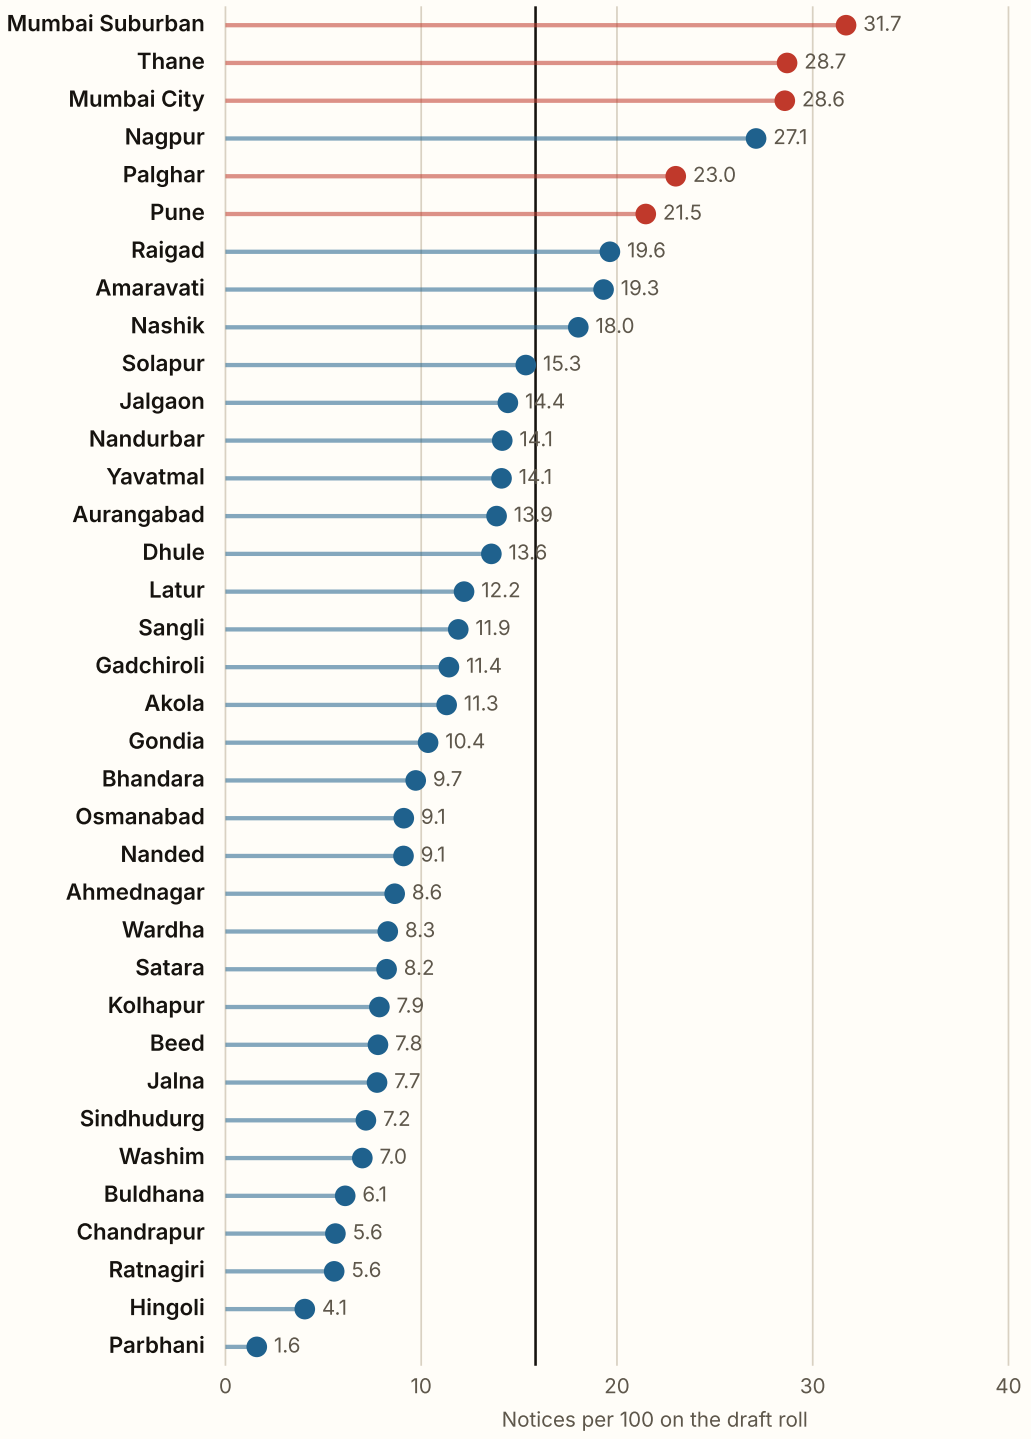

The CEO published the draft roll by sex for every constituency, and nothing else by sex. The roll before the revision and the names left off are given as totals only, so the names left off cannot be counted by sex. What can be shown is women's share of each district's draft roll. Each dot is one district, placed by how far its share sits above or below the state's. Hover or tap a dot for its name.

Women are 48.7% of Maharashtra's draft roll, 3,75,72,570 women against 3,95,89,905 men and 3,087 third-gender electors. Their share runs from 47.0% in Beed to 50.9% in Ratnagiri. In the five city districts it is 49.0% and in the rest 48.6%. Without the roll before the revision by sex, these shares cannot show whether women were left off more often than men.

Notices

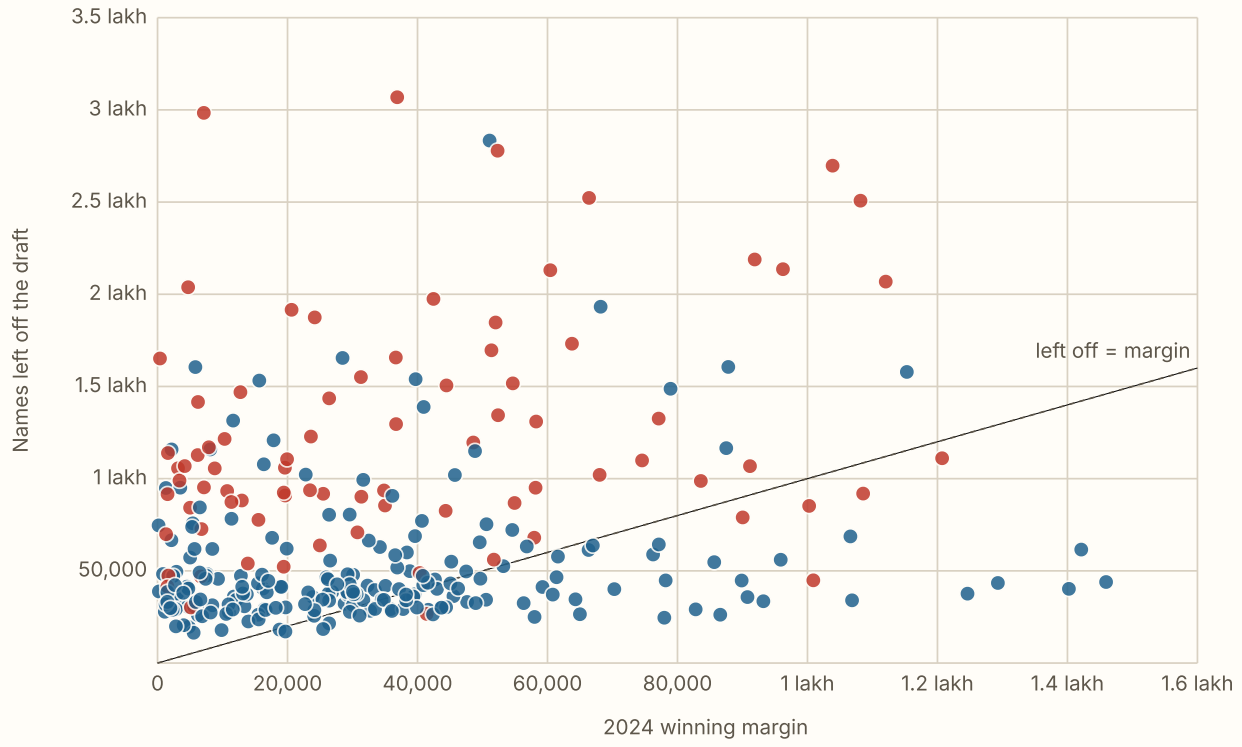

An elector who stays on the draft roll can still be sent a notice to prove the entry, with documents, at a hearing. The CEO's release of 4 September 2026 counts them by district in two lists. One is of electors who could not be linked to the rolls of the last intensive revision, in 2002 to 2004, and the other is of entries with an anomaly, such as an age that does not fit a parent's. Each district's notices are counted here for every 100 electors on its draft roll.

1.22 crore electors still on the draft roll were in line for a notice, 15.8 of every 100. 59.8 lakh could not be linked to the last intensive revision and 62.5 lakh had an anomaly in their entry. Mumbai Suburban had the most for its size, 31.7 of every 100 on its draft, and Parbhani the fewest, 1.6. Districts that left off more names also sent more notices (rank correlation 0.75). How many names have been deleted after a hearing has not been published. The counts are from the CEO's release of 4 September 2026.

Against the 2024 margins

The winning margin is the winner's votes less the runner-up's at the Assembly election of November 2024, from the Election Commission's statistical report. Each dot is a constituency. Its place across is the margin, and its height is the names left off its draft roll. Above the dashed line, more names were left off than the seat was won by. That means the names left off were enough to decide the seat, and it says nothing about whether they would have.

In 220 of the 288 constituencies more names were left off the draft than the 2024 winner's margin. Not everyone on a roll votes, so scaled down by each seat's 2024 turnout it is 183. By the party that won the seat in 2024, the names left off per 100 were 22.9 in the BJP's 132, 20.8 in the Shiv Sena's 57, 16.0 in the NCP's 41, 22.5 in the Shiv Sena (UBT)'s 20, 21.8 in the Congress's 16 and 20.5 in the NCP (SP)'s 10. Set against each seat's own district, the six parties run from -3.5 to 0.8 points, so most of the difference comes from where each party's seats are. Red dots are constituencies in the five city districts.

After the draft

> The final roll is due on 16 November 2026 and is not out yet. After the draft, an elector asks to be added with Form 6, and an objection to a name already on the roll is made with Form 7. The press note set 30 September 2026 as the last day for claims and objections and 4 November 2026 for the final roll. The Commission has since moved them to 26 October 2026 and 16 November 2026, with notices heard until 10 November 2026. Until the final roll is out, nobody can say how many of the names left off will be put back.

The 38 constituencies the CEO listed

On 30 September 2026 the CEO published a list of 38 constituencies with a high share of forms not collected. Its title reads, in full, "Top 38 ACs with High Percentage of Uncollectable EF Electors (excluding Muslim-heavy ACs as claimed by Indian Express report)". The CEO chose the seats in answer to a newspaper's report. Every figure in it agrees with the CEO's statement for all 288 constituencies, which this page uses everywhere else, and it is kept here as printed. The CEO's list.

Questions about this page

How many names did the revision leave off in Maharashtra?

Maharashtra's draft roll of 31 August 2026 left off 2.07 crore names, 21.1 of every 100 electors on the roll before the revision. The draft roll is the list published once the enumeration forms were collected. Every elector on the roll was given an enumeration form to fill in and return, and a name whose form did not come back was left off the draft. The roll before the revision held 9.79 crore names and the draft 7.72 crore.

Where were the most names left off?

Thane left off 38.4 of every 100 electors, the most of the 36 districts, and Mumbai City, Mumbai Suburban, Pune and Nagpur come next. Hingoli left off the fewest, 8.8. Pune lost the most names of any district, 28.7 lakh. 5 districts left off 30 or more of every 100 electors, and 22 left off fewer than 15.

How do Mumbai and Pune compare with the rest of the state?

The five districts of Mumbai City, Mumbai Suburban, Thane, Palghar and Pune hold 29.9% of the state's roll and 48.4% of the names left off. They lost 34.2 of every 100 electors, against 15.6 in the other 31 districts.

Why were the names left off?

37.1% of the names left off were entered as shifted for good, 36.5% as untraceable or absent, 16.8% as dead, 8.5% as enrolled at another place and 1.1% under another reason, by the Chief Electoral Officer's own tables. The five add up to the names left off exactly, for the state, every district and every constituency. A reason is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

Could the names left off have changed the 2024 result?

Bhiwandi East lost 49.1 of every 100 names, the most of the 288 constituencies, and in 220 of them more names were left off than the 2024 winning margin. Scaled down by each seat's 2024 turnout it is 183. Larger than the margin means large enough to decide a seat, and it says nothing about whether it would have. Nobody can know how anyone left off would have voted.

Were women left off more than men?

This cannot be counted. The Chief Electoral Officer published the draft roll by sex and nothing else by sex. The roll before the revision and the names left off are given as totals only. Women are 48.7% of the draft roll, from 47.0% in Beed to 50.9% in Ratnagiri.

Have the names been put back?

Claims and objections run to 26 October 2026, and the final roll is due on 16 November 2026. Until it is out, nobody can say how many of the names left off will be put back. Of the electors kept on the draft roll, 1.22 crore were sent a notice to prove their entry, according to the press, 15.8 of every 100.

Where do the constituency figures come from?

The Chief Electoral Officer published every one of the 288 constituencies in two tables. A statement enclosed with its press note of 16 September 2026 gives the roll before the revision and the names left off, and its tables of 1 September 2026 give the five reasons and the draft roll by sex. Every constituency adds up within itself and to its district, and the districts add up to the state.

Can I look up my own name here?

No. Only counts are published on this site. To check your own entry, use the Election Commission's voter search.

MAHARASHTRA 2026

Figures as of 31 August 2026, when the draft roll was published. The final roll is due on 16 November 2026.

Method

1 Maharashtra's draft roll of 31 August 2026 left off 2.07 crore names, 21.1 of every 100 electors on the roll before the revision.

2 Every figure is from the Chief Electoral Officer's own tables, for the state, all 36 districts and all 288 constituencies, and every column adds up to the state figures.

3 Nothing has been published on the names left off by sex.

What is counted

The press note

The district figures on these pages are from the press note on the draft roll of the Chief Electoral Officer (CEO), Maharashtra, dated 31 August 2026. The CEO keeps the state's rolls for the Election Commission. The note's first annexure gives the draft roll of each of the 36 districts by sex. The second gives, for each district, the enumeration forms that were not collected. Every elector on the roll before the revision was given an enumeration form to fill in and return, and an elector whose form was not collected is left off the draft. So the forms not collected are the names left off.

The roll before the revision

The note gives the roll before the revision for the state only, 9,78,54,049 names. A district's roll before is therefore taken as its draft plus its names left off. Added up over the 36 districts, that comes to the state's figure exactly, so no name is unaccounted for.

How the tables add up

The two annexures list the same 36 districts in the same order. In every district, men, women and third-gender electors add up to the draft. The districts add up to the note's state figures, which are 7,71,65,562 on the draft, 2,06,88,487 left off and 9,78,54,049 before. The percentages printed in the note follow from the counts.

The constituencies and the reasons

Two more of the CEO's documents give every one of the 288 constituencies. A statement enclosed with its press note of 16 September 2026 gives each constituency's roll before the revision and its names left off. The tables of 1 September 2026 give the draft roll of each constituency by sex, and the names left off by the five reasons entered, for each constituency and each district. The five reasons are shifted for good, untraceable or absent, dead, already enrolled at another place, and other. A reason is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

How the constituency tables add up

Every table places each of the 288 constituencies under the district the Election Commission lists it in. In every constituency the roll before less the names left off equals the draft in the table by sex, the five reasons add up to the names left off, men, women and third-gender electors add up to the draft, and the percentage the CEO printed follows from the counts. The constituencies add up to their district's figures in the press note in every column, the reasons to the district table of reasons, and the 38 seats of the CEO's later list to the same figures. The constituency table spells Vikramgad as "Vekramgrth", and the pages use the Commission's spelling.

The 2024 result

Winner, runner-up, winning margin, electors and votes for every seat are from the Election Commission's statistical report for the Assembly election of November 2024. Turnout is votes over electors. The names left off at turnout are the names left off scaled down by that turnout, because not everyone on a roll votes. Larger than the margin means large enough to decide a seat, never that it did.

Notices and dates

The notices are from the CEO's release of 4 September 2026, which counts by district the electors with an anomaly and those with no mapping to the last intensive revision. Each district's two lists add up to its total, and the districts to the state's 1,22,24,007. No count of notices by constituency was found. The dates are from the note, and the later ones from the Commission's letters of 26 September and 12 October 2026, which moved the last day for claims and objections to 26 October 2026 and the final roll to 16 November 2026.

District names

The pages keep the note's spellings. Three districts have since been renamed. Aurangabad is now Chhatrapati Sambhajinagar, Ahmednagar is Ahilyanagar and Osmanabad is Dharashiv, and the finder takes either name.

The maps

The overview's map draws each of the 288 constituencies from DataMeet's assembly constituency map (CC BY 2.5 India). The district pages' map draws each district as the constituencies the Election Commission's own list places in it. DataMeet's map is older than Palghar district, so it puts Dahanu, Vikramgad, Palghar, Boisar, Nalasopara and Vasai in Thane. The Commission's list places them in Palghar, and so does the map. It also places Warora in Chandrapur, where its two tehsils are. DataMeet's map also carries 14 small shapes with no constituency number, creeks and islands round Mumbai, Thane and Raigad, and each is given to the district DataMeet names for it.

What these tables cannot show

- Why the names in any place were left off. The reasons are what the officer wrote down, and an elector entered as absent may have moved or may have been out when the officer called.
- How many notices were sent in each constituency. The notices were published by district only.
- Whether women, the old or the young were left off more often. The names left off are not split by sex or age at any level.
- How many of those left off will be put back. The final roll is not out.
- Whether each exclusion was right. A reason is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

Analysis of the named lists

This site publishes counts only, never a name. For analysis that looks at named voters, see the Sabar Institute.

The Chief Electoral Officer published no split of the names left off by sex, and a reason is what the officer wrote down, so these pages show where names were left off and what was entered, and cannot show why.

Questions about this page

Why were the names left off?

37.1% of the names left off were entered as shifted for good, 36.5% as untraceable or absent, 16.8% as dead, 8.5% as enrolled at another place and 1.1% under another reason, by the Chief Electoral Officer's own tables. The five add up to the names left off exactly, for the state, every district and every constituency. A reason is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

Were women left off more than men?

This cannot be counted. The Chief Electoral Officer published the draft roll by sex and nothing else by sex. The roll before the revision and the names left off are given as totals only. Women are 48.7% of the draft roll, from 47.0% in Beed to 50.9% in Ratnagiri.

Where do the constituency figures come from?

The Chief Electoral Officer published every one of the 288 constituencies in two tables. A statement enclosed with its press note of 16 September 2026 gives the roll before the revision and the names left off, and its tables of 1 September 2026 give the five reasons and the draft roll by sex. Every constituency adds up within itself and to its district, and the districts add up to the state.

Where do the figures come from?

The draft roll by district and sex, and the names left off by district, are from the Chief Electoral Officer's press note of 31 August 2026. The constituency figures and the reasons are from its tables of 1 and 16 September 2026, and the notices from its release of 4 September. Every figure adds up to the state figures in the note. The method page gives each source.
