In short

1. The revision left 58.2 lakh names off West Bengal's draft roll, the list published on 16 December 2025 for electors to check and contest. That is 7.6 of every 100 electors. Another 60.1 lakh were held back from the final roll for adjudication, which means their eligibility was left for judicial officers to decide.
2. In 139 of the 294 assembly constituencies, the seats of the state legislature, the roll the 2026 election was held on was smaller than the 2024 roll by more than the winning margin, the votes by which the winner beat the runner-up. So the fall was large enough to decide those seats. Counted at each seat's own turnout, it still exceeds the margin in 132.
3. Women were 53.5% of the names left off the draft roll, against 49.2% of the roll before it.
4. Of the 60.1 lakh names held back, 27.2 lakh were found not eligible, as the Election Commission reported. 22.2 lakh of those appealed and 1,607 were restored in time to vote.
5. The roll the 2026 election was held on was 77.6 lakh smaller than the 2024 roll, 10.2 of every 100 electors. Kolkata North's fell by 28.0 per 100.
6. 41.5% of the names left off the draft were entered as dead, 34.1% as shifted and 21.0% as absent. A reason on the list is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

The Chief Electoral Officer, who keeps the state's rolls for the Election Commission, publishes no count of the names removed by district or constituency. So those figures measure the fall in the roll, how much smaller each roll was than in 2024. That fall takes in eighteen months of ordinary changes as well as the revision, and it is a different count from the names struck off.

Constituency by constituency

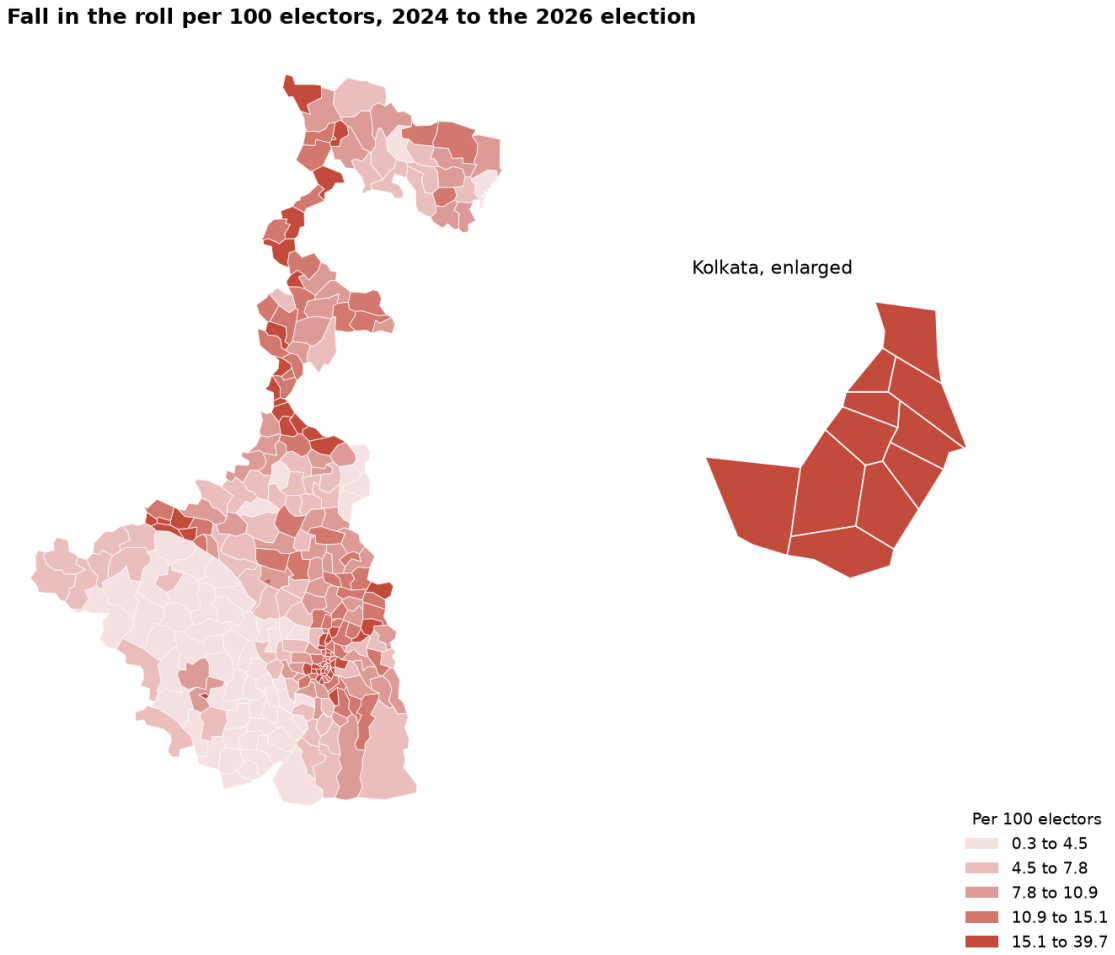

Figure 1. Each constituency shaded by how much smaller its roll was at the 2026 nominations than at the 2024 Lok Sabha nominations, for every 100 electors on the 2024 roll, in five bins with equal numbers of seats. Boundaries from DataMeet's assembly constituency map (CC BY 2.5 India), simplified.

Across the 294 constituencies the fall runs from 0.3 per 100 in Patashpur to 39.7 in Chowrangee.

The roll, step by step

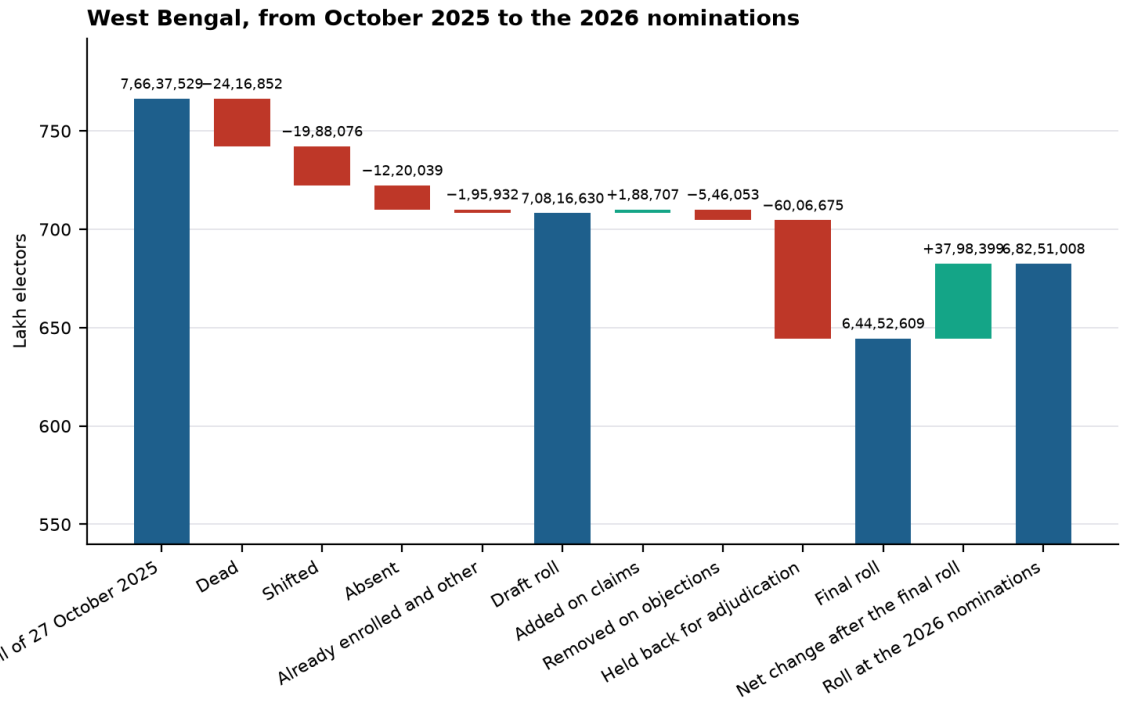

Figure 2. As the Chief Electoral Officer reported it in press note PN-05-2026, with the roll at the 2026 nominations. The bars start above zero so that the changes can be seen.

58,20,899 names were left off the draft roll, 7.6 of every 100 electors, and another 60,06,675 were held back from the final roll for adjudication. 1,88,707 were added on claims, filed on Form 6 to add a name, and 5,46,053 removed on objections, filed on Form 7 to remove one. The final roll of 28 February 2026 held 6.45 crore. By the 2026 nominations the roll had regained 38.0 lakh, and it was still 83.9 lakh smaller than in October 2025. A reason on the list is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

The names held back for adjudication

The 60.1 lakh names marked under adjudication on the final roll were decided by judicial officers appointed on the Supreme Court's direction, and their orders could be appealed to tribunals. The split and the appeals below are the Election Commission's figures as they were reported, for the state as a whole.

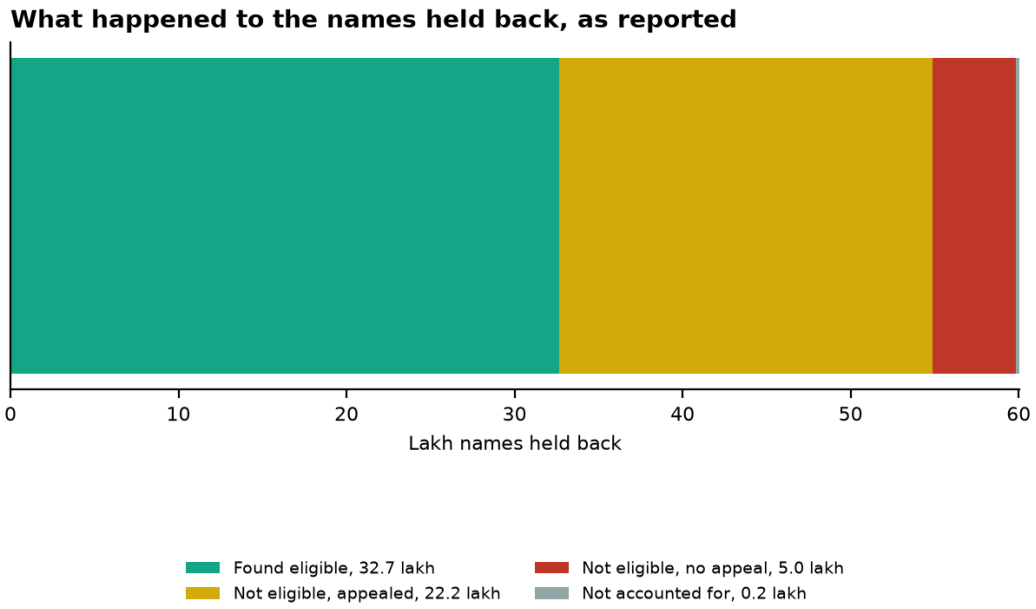

Figure 3. The Election Commission's figures as reported. They are not published by district.

22.2 lakh
appeals by those found not eligible

16.1 lakh
appeals against names kept

1,607
restored in time to vote

96.7%
of appeals undecided on 16 September

As reported, of the 60.1 lakh names held back, 32.7 lakh were found eligible and 27.2 lakh were found not eligible, 45.2% of the cases. 22.2 lakh of those found not eligible appealed, and 1,607 were restored in time to vote. Another 16.1 lakh appeals asked the tribunals to remove names the judicial officers had kept. On 16 September 96.7% of all 38.3 lakh appeals were still undecided. 22,163 cases are not accounted for in the reported figures.

Per 100 electors, by district

The Chief Electoral Officer has published no count of the names removed by district or constituency. What is published for every constituency is the roll at the 2024 Lok Sabha nominations and the roll at the 2026 Assembly nominations. What follows is the fall between the two, for every 100 electors on the 2024 roll. It takes in eighteen months of ordinary additions and deletions as well as the revision. The 2024 roll was 6.3 lakh smaller than the roll of October 2025 the revision started from, so this fall understates the fall from that roll.

The roll the 2026 election was held on was 77.6 lakh smaller than the 2024 roll, 10.2 of every 100 electors. Kolkata North fell by 28.0 per 100 and Kolkata South by 24.5. Purbo Medinipur fell the least, 1.6.

The reasons

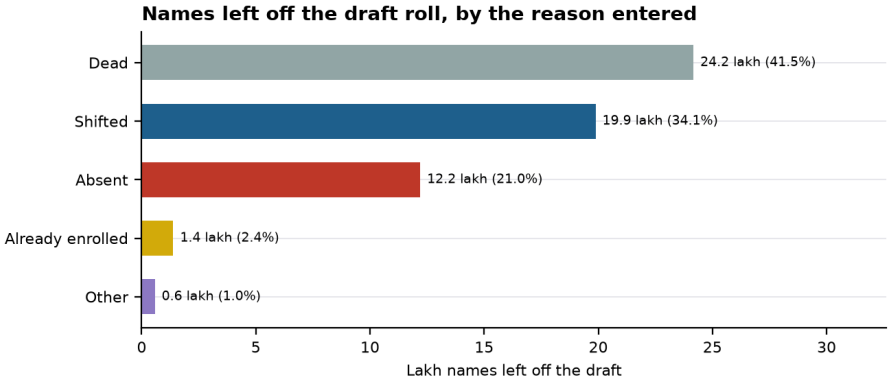

Figure 5. The state as a whole. The reasons are not published by district or constituency.

41.5% of the names left off the draft were entered as dead, 34.1% as shifted and 21.0% as absent. The reasons are published for the state only, so none of the district or constituency figures can be split by reason. A reason on the list is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

Women

Women were 53.5% of the names left off the draft roll, against 49.2% of the roll before it. Between 2024 and the election, women were 52.6% of the fall in the roll and 49.2% of the 2024 roll. They were more than their share in 21 of the 24 districts. In Kolkata North and Kolkata South men were the larger part of the fall.

After the draft

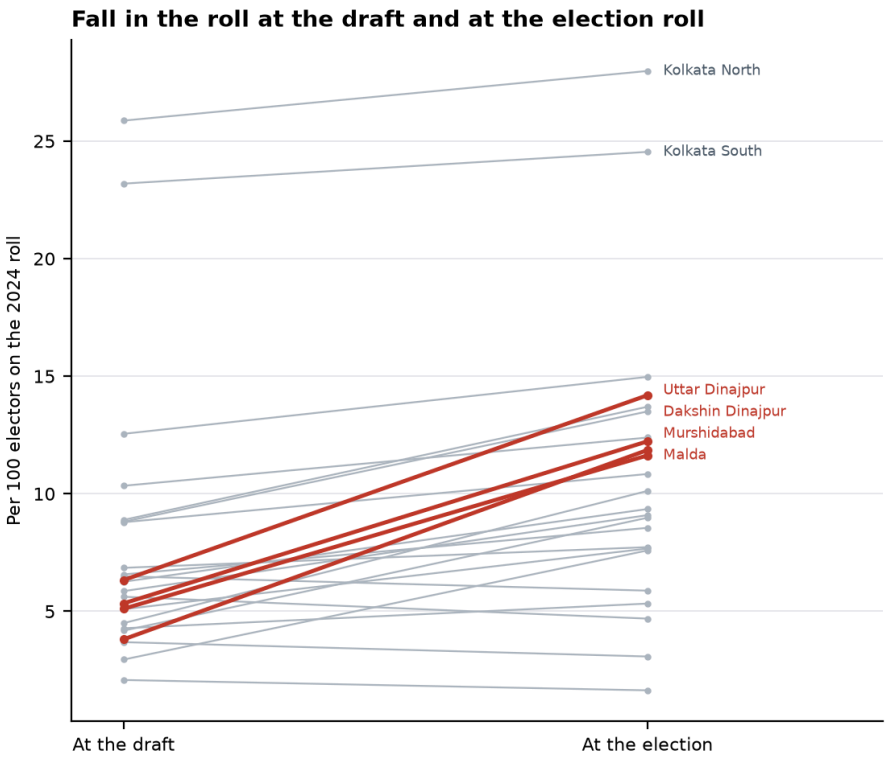

Figure 7. Each line is a district. The steeper the climb, the more of the fall came after the draft. The four districts where it climbed most in red.

Most of the fall in Murshidabad, Uttar Dinajpur and Dakshin Dinajpur came after the draft. Murshidabad's roll was 3.8 per 100 smaller at the draft and 11.9 per 100 smaller at the election. In Kolkata almost all of the fall was already in the draft. The 60.1 lakh names held back for adjudication are counted for the state only, so this gap is the nearest the published tables come to showing where they fell. It is not a count of them.

The 2026 election

The fall in the roll against the winning margin

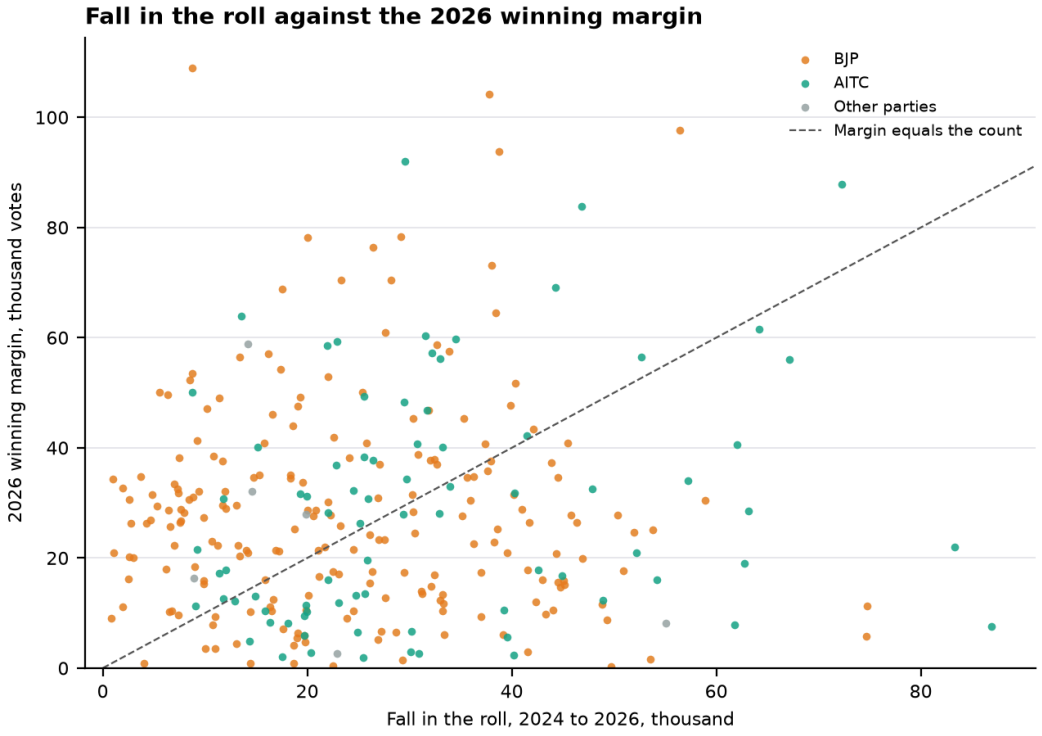

Figure 8. Each dot is a constituency, coloured by the party that won it. Dots below the dashed line are seats where the roll fell by more than the winner won by.

In 139 of the 294 constituencies, the roll fell by more than the 2026 winning margin, large enough to decide the seat. The fall and the margin as a share of votes are close to unrelated. Their rank correlation, a measure that runs from -1 to 1 and is near 0 when two things do not move together, is 0.12. So the seats whose rolls shrank most were not the closest contests.

How many seats, on each count

94 of 294
fall to the draft roll

139 of 294
fall to the election roll

132 of 294
fall to the election roll, at turnout

The first count stops at the draft roll of December 2025. The second runs to the roll the election was held on, after the names held back for adjudication. The third counts the second at the seat's own 2026 turnout. Counted at turnout, the fall still exceeds the margin in 132 of the 294 seats. In the other 162, the runner-up could not have won even if every elector missing from the roll had voted, at the seat's turnout, for the runner-up. None of the three separates the names entered as dead, because the reasons are published for the state only. The fall counts the dead and ordinary changes to the roll too, and nobody can know how anyone missing from it would have voted.

The fall by the party that won

Party that won	Seats	Fall per 100	Against own district	Fall over margin
BJP	208	9.4	+0.0	93
AITC	80	12.4	+0.2	44
INC	2	15.5	+4.0	2
AJUP	2	6.5	-5.3	0
CPI(M)	1	3.2	-8.6	0
ISF	1	5.1	-5.8	0

The BJP won 208 seats and the AITC 80. The roll fell by 9.4 per 100 in the seats the BJP won and by 12.4 in those the AITC won. Set against the fall in their own districts, the two come out at +0.0 and +0.2, so the difference comes from where the seats are. The fall exceeded the margin in 93 of the BJP's seats and 44 of the AITC's.

What these tables show and what they cannot

The tables show the names left off the draft and the names held back for the state as a whole, and how much smaller every constituency's roll was at the 2026 election than in 2024.

- How many names were removed in each district or constituency, or on what recorded reason.
- Where the names held back for adjudication were, or how many of them in each place were found eligible.
- Whether each removal was right. A reason on the list is what the officer wrote down, and nobody checked it.

- How anyone missing from the roll would have voted. No list of removals can show intent.

What the Election Commission should do

58.2 lakh names came off West Bengal's draft roll and 60.1 lakh more were held back from the final roll. The Election Commission should do five things.

1. Publish the names removed by constituency and polling station, with the reason and the sex of each, so that the removals can be counted where they happened.
2. Publish the outcome of adjudication by district and constituency, as its own table and in full.
3. Decide the 37.1 lakh appeals still pending, and publish how many names each decision restored or removed.
4. Account for the 22,163 cases missing from the reported outcome of adjudication.
5. Publish how many of those added after the draft had been left off it, so that names restored can be told apart from new voters.

Method and sources

The Chief Electoral Officer's press note PN-05-2026 gives the roll of 27 October 2025, the 58,20,899 names left off the draft by reason, the claims and objections, the 60,06,675 names held back for adjudication, and the final roll of 28 February 2026. Every one of those figures is for the state as a whole, and they add up step by step. The women and men on the roll before the revision, set against the draft roll by sex, give the share of women among the names left off.

No table of the names removed by district or constituency has been published. What is published for all 294 constituencies, by sex, is three rolls, the roll at the 2024 Lok Sabha nominations, the draft roll of 16 December 2025, and the roll at the 2026 Assembly nominations. So the constituency figures measure the fall in the roll from 2024. That fall includes the revision, the names held back for adjudication and those not restored, and also eighteen months of ordinary additions and deletions before the revision began. The roll of October 2025 was 6.3 lakh larger than the 2024 roll, so the fall from 2024 is smaller than the fall from the roll the revision started from.

The outcome of adjudication and the appeals are the Election Commission's figures as the press reported them, including its affidavit of 16 September, and they are given here as reported. The district of each constituency is the Chief Electoral Officer's, and district figures are the sums of their constituencies.

The 2026 winner, runner-up and margin are from the Election Commission's constituency result pages, checked against its state-wise pages, with Falta's from its re-poll. Turnout is votes over the roll at the nominations. Each seat's fall per 100 is also set against the fall of its own district, and those differences are averaged for each party's seats. The map uses DataMeet's assembly constituency map, licensed CC BY 2.5 India. Only counts are published, never a name, EPIC number or address.
